

4-10-2013

Dean Logan's Blog: RWU Law Prof Looks at The American Empire through Unique Lens

Roger Williams University School of Law

Follow this and additional works at: https://docs.rwu.edu/law_pubs_blogs

Recommended Citation

Roger Williams University School of Law, "Dean Logan's Blog: RWU Law Prof Looks at The American Empire through Unique Lens" (2013). Law School Blogs. 14.
https://docs.rwu.edu/law_pubs_blogs/14

This Document is brought to you for free and open access by the School of Law Publications at DOCS@RWU. It has been accepted for inclusion in Law School Blogs by an authorized administrator of DOCS@RWU. For more information, please contact mwu@rwu.edu.

Dean Logan's Blog

RWU Law Prof Looks at The American Empire through Unique Lens

Posted by David Logan on 05/10/2013 at 12:55 PM

One of our many innovative scholars is Michael Burger, who has developed expertise in controversial areas, including “fracking” <http://law.rwu.edu/story/burger-fracking-and-federalism> and the impact of the melting polar icecap <http://law.rwu.edu/blog/young-faculty-star-tackles-impact-oil-rush-arctic>

Now he is taking on a much broader topic: the making of the “American Empire.” With a co-author from the Princeton faculty, Michael is considering some fundamental understandings of property rights by looking closely at the treatment of Indian lands and the expropriation of intellectual property from indigenous peoples. The article, appearing soon in the Hawaii Law Review, has already gone viral, picked up and favorably treated on the leading blog The Faculty Lounge <http://www.thefacultylounge.org/2013/05/property-law-and-american-empire.html>.

